Funeral Services For Mrs. L. L. Pack

Funeral services over the remains of Mrs. Mary Powelson Pack, were held in the First Ward Church Sunday afternoon at 3 p.m. with Bishop J. O. Hicken in charge. The choir was conducted by W. W. McMullin with Roi Stone at the console. The beautiful casket and the rostrum were banked with flowers, silent tributes from friends of the family, and dozens of letters and telegrams of condolence and sympathy had been received. All members of the family as well as three of Lambert's brothers from Utah, were present for the services, and the large hall including the Stake House room was filled the congregation numbering nearly 700 or over.

The opening hymn was "Lord We Come Before Thee Now," after which Elder H. S. Allen offered prayer, and the second song was "The Lord is My Shepherd."

J. W. Evans, ex-bishop of Raymond and friend of the family for 38 years was the first speaker and expressed his appreciation of his friendship for deceased and L.L. Pack which had been pleasant and profitable over these many years. He spoke of the life of happiness and optimism of deceased, of her ambition and aggressiveness, and stated that while in her young womanhood just after her marriage, while her husband was on a mission to Germany, she labored in a store to provide for herself and assist him while away, besides taking care of the small family. Deceased was born in Goshen, Utah, in 1882 the daughter of pioneer parents her mother having crossed the plains in one of the famous handcart companies and her father with an ox-team. Deceased was educated in Goshen and the B.Y.U. at Provo, and in 1903 was married, shortly before her husband left on his mission and she with her parents moved to Raymond, to start a new home.

When her husband finished his labors he returned to Raymond, and they commenced the job of building a home, and how well they had succeeded and how well she had done her part in the building of a home, and the mothering of five fine children was well known. He hoped that the fine virtues of their mother would continue to influence the lives of the children for all of their lives, and he felt that we could take a fine lesson from the cheery and uncomplaining spirit of deceased, during the years of her affliction, which has lasted for quite a number, and yet she never complained or spoke of her troubles.

Frank R. Taylor and Co. sang "Crossing the Bar.".

Mayor D. H. Elton of Lethbridge expressed his appreciation of the friendship of deceased and the Pack family, and stated that there were so many things to say he did not know where to commence. He hoped to be able to say something of condolence to the family and spoke of the contrast of our meeting here where everything was quiet, serene and beautiful, to the hundreds of thousands of lives being snuffed out in Europe, with not a flower, not a word nor a friend. How grateful we should be, even in our sorrow. Speaking of the lovely singing and music, he said there was something about music that redeems, that sanctifies and gives and that it has a universal language and is appreciated and enjoyed by every one. In the drama of life we all have our part we have our entrances and our exits, and when our part, whether little or great

TOWN COUNCIL NEWS

Re: Application of Town residents for separation of certain lands from Town.

The application for separation from the Town, made to the Public Utilities Board was not granted but an Order changing the basis of assessment and the Mill rate in this area was made.

This Order will make it necessary for the Town to issue new tax notices changing the assessment and mill rate and setting the rate for irrigation water at $1.50 per acre in this area the same as in other parts of town. (The order stating that no discrimination as to water rates in different parts of town may be changed.)

A portion of the order made by the Board is quoted below, full judgment and order may be read at Town Hall by anyone interested.

"There will be an order of the Board whereby all that portion of Plan 4489 J, lying West of both St. West and that portion of Plan 4489 J lying East of 4th St. West and North of the C.P.R. right of way and strip of unsubdivided land South of 4th St. South shall be assessed at a maximum of $30.00 per acre. Buildings and farm improvements shall not be liable to a assessment or taxation. The order provides for a maximum rate of taxation on this land at 15 mills for School purposes and 6 mills for general purposes. This rate to be in effect for 15 years from January 1st, 1940.

Gordon Brewerton of Cardston was a Raymond visitor on Monday.

is finished we pass on and leave the stage to others. He referred to friends. We never make friends we discover them. He recited a poem of Guest's on friends, and also the entire poem of Miss Haskins, on prayer, from which King George took the new famous closing lines of his Christmas speech, and said that the man or nation who put their trust in God and go out in faith cannot lose, because they put their trust in the perfect guide and companion. Our hope was not in the cradle but on the Cross, not in Bethlehem but on Calvary. The agnostic say life is a brief isthmus between the barren peaks of two unknown eternities. Mormonism teaches that life is a very important span between two well known eternities, the spirit life and life after death, and because of this, the spirit of deceased will be very interested in the doings of her family and friends here, and will be very well pleased with the services today and the way her earthly tabernacle has been laid away.

Bishop Hicken, on behalf of the family thanked all for their assistance during the illness and passing of deceased and of the fine services. He expressed his sympathy to the family in their sorrow.

The closing song was "Abide With Me" and benediction by Elder T. O. King.

Interment was in the local cemetery, a large cortege following the remains to their last resting place. Pall bearers were close friends of the family: Lowell Court, Harding Brewerton, W. C. Stone, W. H. Zobel, Kay B. Redd and L. D. King. The grave at the cemetery was dedicated by O. H. Snow.

Our sympathies with the other thousands of friends of the family, go out to the bereaved husband and children in their sorrow in the loss of wife and mother.

All Set For The Big Stampede

Raymond's big Stampede and Race Meet will be held July 1st and 2nd, and plans are well under way now for the biggest and bestest Stampede ever held. A meeting of cowboys and the Stampede executive, held recently resulted in a splendid understanding between the boys who make the show and the management, and the best feeling possible exists now as plans are under way and shaping up for the two big days. Clarke Lund, winner of the Dominion and the World's bucking championship at Calgary last year, is Arena Director, and assisting him are the local cowboys and also Jack Streeter and Pat Burton of Claesholm district, and this fact by itself argues well for the success of the show. An added attraction too, this year, is the use of the long horned Highland cattle for the decorating.

The cattle are fleet footed, wild and mean, and the cowboy who goes out to decorate has a busy few seconds trying to get down on their neck and put the ribbon on the horns. The fact too, that any profits from the show will go to the Canadian Red Cross is another point which has added to the general good feeling, and is a point which the management feels should induce people to attend and should also be an invitation from neighboring towns to make Raymond the mecca of their Dominion Day travels, as in doing so, they will not only be given a real treat in the Stampede events, but will also be helping the Red Cross, which organization, as everyone knows, does more to alleviate suffering and misery in the world than possibly any other single organization.

So, the plans go on, and besides the usual liberal prize list for the cowboys Lee Brewerton, manager of the Capitol Theatre has donated a lovely cup for annual competition amongst the cowboys, and we understand it will go to the performer with the greatest aggregate of points in riding, roping and decorating at the Raymond show. Business men and Stampede boosters are getting their big hats out of the moth balls and decorating them with brightly colored hat bands, store windows are being spruced up with bright silk shirts, hats scarfs and so on, and street lights are being put up and everything done to make people Dominion Day and Stampede conscious with the hope of a big time. Raymond can accommodate large crowds and has the best Stampede Grounds and Race Track in Southern Alberta, and it is suggested that as a goodwill gesture and a help to the Red Cross that Raymond, its invite friends and relatives to visit them in Raymond that day and enjoy the show. Let's go.

WEDDING BELLS

NILSSON — BOYSON

Jack, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Nilsson, and Pearl, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Boyson of Stirling were married at the Cardston Temple Wednesday morning in the presence of the parents of the groom, mother of the bride and other relatives from Stirling and Raymond, with President Edw. J. Wood performing the ceremony. At present they are away on their honeymoon, after which they will make their home in Raymond where Jack is engaged with his father on the farm.

MULHOLLAND — LITCHFIELD

Melvin Mulholland of Claesholm and Marjorie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Litchfield of Raymond were united in marriage Wednesday morning in the Alberta Temple, with parents and other relatives of both parties present for the ceremony which was performed by President Edw. J. Wood of the Temple.

After the ceremony they left on a honeymoon trip and will reside at Claesholm where the groom is engaged in farming.

Our best wishes go to both these young couples for a long and happy married life, and they also have the best wishes and congratulations of a host of friends in Raymond and district for their happiness.

TWO RAYMOND GRADUATES

Among Albertans graduating this year at the B.Y.U., Provo, are two Raymond young men, H. Dean Rolfsen graduating with his Bachelor's degree from the College of Arts and Sciences, and Earl W. Hascom with his B.S.C. from the College of Fine Arts.

We extend our heartiest congratulations to these boys on their accomplishments. Both have had to make their own way through college, and Dean has made it a practice of spending a year in college, teaching two or three years, whatever was necessary, and returning for another year and so has won. Earl, who is an artist of more than ordinary native ability, follows the rodeos in the summer months, where he can be with the best in saddle and bareback riding, and especially in bulldogging, and takes his prize money for tuition in the college during the school terms. This tenacity and courage in the quest for education and mental improvement is very commendable, and we certainly say "well done" to these two local men on their achievements.

Bob Walker and LeRoy Anderson returned Sunday from the B. Y. U. where they have attended the past year.

ALTERATIONS OF GARAGE FRONT

C. W. Lamb and helpers start work this week remodeling the front of the old King and Green Garage. Since the erection of the Texaco Service Station years ago, this part of the building has not been used except for storage and a show room.

We understand that three of the two rooms each will be constructed across the front of the building, and on the ground floor as they will be should make very fine suites. The front looks rather sorry as it is being dismantled.

Phil Baker, President of the Southern Alberta Water Conservation Board and former Raymond citizen was the speaker at the Rotary luncheon on Monday and made some very plain statements with respect to water conservation in Southern Alberta and the need for aggressive and immediate action on some of these programs in order to safeguard the supply of food for our armies and to eliminate losses to irrigation farmers between here and Coal Dale because of low water at critical periods, which fact it is estimated cost this irrigation block extending from Magrath to Coaldale $348,000 last year alone.

There are two natural reservoir sites south of Raymond a few miles where more than 100,000 acre feet of water could be stored. For an expenditure of $100,000 according to engineer's estimates, a canal could be constructed from Bradshaw to the coulee running into the largest of these two sites, and in the spring of the year when the water was not being used for irrigation purposes these reservoirs could be filled and then, in a dry summer, there would be ample water there for the needs of the farmers, especially hay and beet growers, who last year watched the profit in their year's work greatly diminished as the dry spell cut down yields on hay beets and grain. J. L. Baker suggested a tax of $1.00 per acre on the land in the present irrigation area to pay this $100,000 and said that it could more than come back to the farmers in one year.

The map showed extensive tracts of good land in Southern Alberta now arid or semi-arid, which could be reclaimed and would make some of our best farm land if they were irrigated, and, if the Dominion Government could be induced to construct the St. Mary's river dam near Spring Coulee much, if not all of this land could be reclaimed and put to beneficial crops. The parent Government excused itself because of its war effort, and not discounting this, the speaker said that food was just as important as bullets and guns for the success of an army and in his opinion the Government would really be showing long vision and good business to go ahead and build this dam and other works necessary to safeguard the grain crops of the prairies. Another thing, too, he said was to safeguard our share of the run off waters of the St. Mary's and Milk rivers which at present are set by international agreement but are subject to change, depending on which nation prepares to make beneficial use of their portion, or none, before the present agreement expires. The need for action said the speaker was very, very urgent.

The Rotary Club voted 100p.c support and asked officials of the Raymond Irrigation District most of whom were present, to set it at once and see what could be done toward a start at least on this important and far reaching program.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Walton, Mr. and Mrs. L. D. King, Mrs. Hamp Witbeck and Mrs. M. W. Boyson left early Monday morning to attend the June Convent on in Salt Lake City. They will be away for about two weeks.

Mrs. H. Christensen and daughter Leona moved to Lethbridge over the weekend to make their home. Old timers of Raymond we regret to see them leave, but wish them much success and happiness in their new home.

NEWS NOTES

Quite a number of members of the High Priests Quorum were at the Temple Wednesday, attending their special day there.

Despite the heavy clouds Saturday and Sunday, only a few drops of rain fell Saturday afternoon, none at all on Sunday.

A shower Wednesday evening freshened things up a little, but a good rain is needed and would be very welcome, although nothing is suffering.

Jas. E. Meeks left early this week for Utah where he will attend the June M.I.A. Convention and will bring LaVon back with him from her winter schooling in Utah.

Mr. and Mrs. Peterborg of Preston, Idaho, are guests of the J.W. Evans family. They arrived Tuesday evening having driven through that day. They are only making a brief stay.

C. S. Longman, Field Crop Commissioner of the Alberta Government was a Raymond visitor Wednesday evening, a guest at the Thos. Allan home for an hour or two.

T. Geo. Wood District Manager of Canadian Sugar Factories returned this week after attending the Canadian Manufacturers' Convention in Winnipeg and a business trip thru Saskatchewan.

Nazi planes bombed Paris Sunday killing 45 and wounding 149 when 300 planes took part in the bombing raids. It looks like the Allies will be forced to retaliate against German cities much as it goes against the grain of our airman to jeopardize the safety of innocent men, women and children and the destruction of valuable property, just again.

There are some fine pictures of Raymond's Boxing champion, at the Haggie Barber Shop. Fans should take a look at these photos and the boys in punching pose.

Raymond Juniors won their game from Stirling Tuesday evening with an 8-4 score. It was an interesting game thru out and both teams played fine ball most of the way through.

Grade XII are commencing the writing of examinations on June 19th and will finish on the 27th. Special papers are being written for Normal entrance, and we understand that only three of the local Grade XII are writing this paper.

The students from the B.Y.U. are expected home the end of this week and will include besides the two already home, Miss LaVon Meeks, Billy Nalder, Maurice Heninger, and several others whose names we do not recall right now.

Many trees are infested with bugs that are eating the leaves. B. Roberts says a light spraying with kerosene, gasoline or tractor fuel from a fly spray will kill the worms and not hurt the trees. The spray should be applied in the middle of the afternoon when the worms gather in clusters.

Rain stopped the Senior game with New Dayton Wednesday night just after the start of the sixth inning. The score was 4-2 in favor of New Dayton, but the Raymond boys maintain that if it hadn't rained they would have won as they were just commencing to find the New Dayton hurlers offerings when the rains came. Better luck next time fellows, and here's hoping you top the last year's performance again.

THESE MEAN MORE THAN THRIFT

War Savings Certificates.
The Government could have called them "National Safety Certificates."

For that, in stark truth, is what they are. War Savings Certificates are what, in peace days, we might call a "fine investment." They make for thrift, lay a foundation of security, appeal to the spirit of self-respect and self-reliance. On these grounds, as well as upon the grounds of democratic responsibility, of a wider devotion to the democratic creed of voluntary citizens, they meet a need.

But, far more than all these things, and more terribly vital, War Savings Certificates are a challenge to patriotism. They are a call to all of us, and provide the means for all of us, to answer the challenge of war service as it is dictated by duty which no one can expect to be forgiven for ignoring.

War Savings Certificates are OUR share in this war. They ask us whether, in this terrible conflict, with all that we are or ever hope to be at stake, we are content with lip-loyalty to our cause; content with abuse of Hitler, unwilling to make even moderate sacrifice for the sake of all our future.

In war-racked France today the soldiers of democracy are dying for its defence. Are we willing to back them up? To deny ourselves things we can yield easily for their sakes? Are we willing to contribute something to feed and arm them to sustain their strength, to tell them that back at home their peoples are supporting them?

This... this above all else... is the challenge of War Savings Certificates.

Over in Old England a-ross the seas men and women and little children, workers and farmers, old and young, rich and poor, humble and obscure, are yielding their all for victory. Giving up in taxes, subscribing to loans, buying war savings certificates, they are giving a testimony of devotion to democracy and liberty as noble as any thing that history has seen. It is for us here in Canada to show whether such devotion is ours, whether democracy and freedom mean as much to us as it does to them.

Let us in these coming weeks give proof of such devotion. Let us make this War Savings Certificates campaign a crusade: telling our Government and men on land and sea and in the air that we fight behind them. It is the least, God knows, that we can do.

A NATIONAL HERITAGE

Usually legal phraseology is cold and uninspiring, but there are many exceptions of course. An example is the wording of the National Parks Act under the heading General Purposes: "The National Parks are dedicated to the people of Canada for their benefit and enjoyment and such Parks shall be maintained and made use of so as to leave them unimpaired for the enjoyment of future generations."

The framers of this Act with considerable vision laid the foundation of a national parks system designed to meet the recreational needs, not only of Canadians, but of their kith and kin from many other lands. As the years go by the facilities which the parks offer for a quiet and peaceful holiday are becoming more widely known and utilized by ever-increasing numbers from at home and abroad. Each year more and more visitors are entering these parks for a few days' or weeks' quiet holiday away from the turmoil and stress of a busy, modern world.

Canada's National Parks form a link between the past and the present. Their untouched natural beauty, the wild life which has been saved from extinction, all remind the visitor of things that were before the white man came to this continent. As visitors pass through the park gates they must feel that they are coming from a twentieth century to an eighteenth century Canada where, except for the good roads and winding trails and administrative buildings which blend architecturally with their surroundings, there is nothing to remind them that this is a part of a world of millions of human beings, busy industrial cities, stuffy offices and hot pavements. They are now in a kingdom of wild life and unspoiled natural beauty where the whole environment spells peace and serenity. The "wild" creatures are no longer wild since most of them have never heard the crack of a rifle or the report of a shot-gun. They have not been hunted with anything more deadly than a camera, and so gradually are losing their fear of man. In fact many seem to enjoy the posing for "trophy hunters" and their pictures must adorn the leaves of hundreds of albums yearly.

The national parks system of Canada, which began over fifty years ago with a small reservation around the hot springs at Banff in the Canadian Rockies has now been extended to embrace almost every province in the dominion, and comprises 19 parks with an area of some 12,000 square miles—about two-fifths the size of all Scotland. These parks vary greatly in character and purpose and are among Canada's greatest tourist attractions. But the general purpose as outlined by the authors of the National Parks Act is carefully preserved so that these national playgrounds may continue to serve the recreational needs of Canadians and their friends from other lands from generation to generation with their natural beauty left unimpaired.

NEWS NOTES

Mr. and Mrs. Ross Wight of Provo Utah spent Friday in Raymond with Mr. and Mrs. Don Merrill. Mrs. Wight being a sister of Don. They went to Lethbridge on Saturday.

Jazelle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Meeks had a birthday party Monday when a number of her small friends attended and spent a couple of enjoyable hours at the Meeks home.

Harry Robinson who underwent a very serious operation three weeks ago returned home the first part of the week, considerably better and on the road to improvement.

Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Arbon and wife and son and Mr. Arbon's sister are guests of the T.O. King family Mr. Arbon being a brother of Mrs. King. They live in Arbon Ward near Poateilo, and are enjoying their visit here very much.

Lieut.-Gov. and Mrs. E. W. Hamber of British Columbia have made a donation of $100,000 to the Canadian government for war purposes. Such generosity should certainly encourage the government in its efforts.

Calls by the Canadian Red Cross for ambulances for emergency war work has resulted in six being promised from Calgary area. The city of Calgary will buy one, the Calgary Rotary Club issued a call Monday for $2,000 to buy one and with in five minutes $2,146 had been donated. M. B. Peacock, Calgary barrister donated one, and Associated Breweries are buying three one each for Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba.

WEEKLY LETTER

Variations in the Butterfat Content of Cream

Last week, reference was made to some of the factors which cause the butterfat content of whole milk to vary. Some suggestions will now be made regarding variations in cream tests.

Perhaps the most important factors causing variations in the butterfat content of cream arise in the separator.

The Speed of the Separator: Variations in the speed at which the separator bowl revolves will cause a variation in the test of the cream. Most separator bowls revolve at approximately 8000 revolutions per minute, with the crankshaft turning about 60 revolutions per minute. That is, every time the crankshaft turns once, the bowl revolves from 135 to 140 times. This high revolving speed produces the centrifugal force which brings about the separation of the fat from the milk. The higher the speed, the greater the force and the more complete is the separation of the fat. Conversely, the lower the speed, the less the centrifugal force and the result is that separation is less complete. A variation of one revolution of the crankshaft per minute may make a difference of 1 per cent in the cream test.

The Temperature of the Milk: The temperature of the milk at the time of separating has a bearing on the cream test. Milk becomes more viscous as it cools and therefore flows more slowly. Thus, if the temperature of the milk which is being separated drops somewhat, the cream line will be narrower and the cream will test higher.

Rate of the Milk Flow: The rate of the flow of milk into the separator bowl may cause some variation in the cream test. An increased inflow reduces the fat test while a reduced flow increases it. Normally, the flow of milk into the separator bowl is regulated quite accurately by means of the float, but there may be times when for one reason or another, such as the tap not being turned full on, the flow will be somewhat retarded.

The Percentage of Fat in the Milk: Differences in the fat test of the whole milk will have some influence on the fat test of the cream. For example, in milk testing 4 per cent there are four pounds of fat in 100 pounds of milk, while in milk testing 3 per cent there are only 3 pounds of fat in every 100 pounds of milk. If 100 pounds of each lot is run through a separator under exactly the same conditions as to time, speed, temperature, etc. there will be practically the same number of pounds of cream in each case. However there would be practically one pound of fat more in the cream from the 4 per cent milk, which would give a correspondingly higher testing than that taken from the 3 per cent milk.

CHAPTER X

"Anybody home?" called Anne Phillips opening the front door.

"Heaven help the poor working girls on a night like this," Jim grinned. "There you go, making the best of things as usual."

Anne smiled at Cathy, "Any way our sons like us," she said. "How's the boy?"

Cathy hesitated. "He's been asleep for an hour. He feels awfully hot to me and it isn't like him to be so quiet."

She smiled, knelt down and put her hand on Danny's small forehead.

"Has—has he any fever?" faltered Cathy.

"Maybe a little," admitted Anne.

It seemed to Jim that Cathy's eyes had grown too big for her stricken face. "Want me to stroll over and pick up a doctor he asked helplessly."

Anne shook her head. "It's probably just an upset stomach. You'd better leave Danny here on the daybed until you get home tonight so I can look at him occasionally," she suggested.

"You're all so kind," said Cathy with a little sob. "I don't like to impose on you but Grand ma Bauer's old and she doesn't hear very well and if—if Sonny got worse—"

Cathy had stopped to pick up her little boy. "Let me," said Jim. "He's getting too heavy for you to carry." He gathered Danny gently into his arms with out waking him. Cathy went ahead to open the door. Jim, the baby's head resting like a crumpled yellow flower on his shoulder tiptoed after her. "Some one's bought the house," Janet said.

It was unnecessary to say what house. There was only one which mattered to the Phillips family. Anne who had turned toward the kitchen paused abruptly.

"Yes?" she asked with a catch in her voice. "Who?"

"His name is Tony Ryan, and he was born in Shanty Town. He's employed me to help restore the old place. Incidentally he's going to marry Priscilla if he can, and I think he can."

"He's in love with her?"

"Love!" exclaimed Janet with a cynical laugh. "Now where have I heard that word before?"

Her mother flinched. "I don't like to hear you jeer at the eternal verities, Janet. If it's Gordon who has disillusioned you, he isn't worth it."

"It isn't only Gordon," said Janet, blinking her eyes to drive back the tears. "It's a combination of everything." She smiled uncertainly. "Perhaps it's the good for me to have my head pulled down out of the clouds."

"No! her mother protested. "It's a lovely head, and it was made to brush the stars."

That was before Berenice and Bill came in just as the others were sitting down to the table. "Darlings," exclaimed Anne, "how did you know I was wishing for you? You haven't eaten I hope."

"I'm not hungry," said Bill with a dull flush.

Anne noticed that Berenice ignored his remark quite as if he had not spoken. "Are you sure you have enough to go around?" she asked her mother.

Anne laughed. She and Janet were scurrying about setting extra places.

"Bill's had another salary cut," said Berenice. "We thought we'd have to give up the apartment and I was sick, simply sick, and all my friends said it was a shame. So May Shielton called up Guy and he said he could use me as a file clerk or something in his office. The salary isn't large, but it's more than Bill's cut and after all, I had nearly finished my business course when I stopped to get married."

A dark flush crept to the roots of Bill's black hair. "I think a wife ought to be willing to make the best of her husband's earnings. I suppose that's what it meant when we went through all that for better, for worse for richer for poorer stuff."

Berenice glared at him. "You've always thought Mother perfect, and she works."

Anne winced. "I've been compelled to," she said.

The telephone rang and Janet jumped up to answer. "It's for you, Jim," she said.

Jim went into the hall and picked up the receiver. "That you Phillips?" inquired Howard Leigh. "I have a message for you from Miss Sanders."

Jim's hand tightened on the edge of the telephone stand.

"All right," he said. "Fire."

"She has decided to join her father for a cruise on his yacht."

Jim's heart felt like an exposed nerve. "So what?"

"We're leaving at midnight for New Orleans. I'm invited to go along."

"Think of that!" said Jim with a bleak laugh.

"It seems she owes you for a golf lesson. I think you can send the bill to me."

"And you can step to hell," said Jim banging up the receiver.

He was scowling when he returned to the table. Something in the set of his lips forbade questions as he jerked out his chair and sat down again.

July that year ran true to form. Torrid days with pavement sticky under the glaring sun were followed by sultry nights when the leaves on the trees hung motionless.

Jack McCall returned to his duties at the golf club and Jim went back to his regular routine in Judge Hetchcote's office.

Apparently Jim was the same as he had ever been—conscious, steady, level-headed. He worked nearly every night, studying or going over briefs. After dinner each evening he romped with Danny. Later he drove Cathy over to the night club. Sometimes he stayed at the office late enough to bring her home. If he had suffered a wound, he said nothing. Only his mother's eyes could have detected the faint lines that tightened about Jim's mouth and even she could not be certain of his unhappiness.

In the same fashion Anne had no adequate excuse for her anxiety in regard to Berenice. She seemed more contented after she began working in Guy Shelton's office. Her mother thought it a good thing for Berenice to have less time to play around with her idle and sophisticated women friends and Anne was positive that was why Bill had yielded the point.

To Janet also those four weeks had a sinister quality, like the dead calm preceding a hurricane. Nevertheless, the work on Tony Ryan's house was progressing apace.

Mr. Busby was a short, stocky middle aged man and a fine workman. She was self conscious the first afternoon she reported to Mr. Busby at the Radcliffe house.

"As near as I can make out, you're the court of last resort," he said. "If there's any doubt in my mind about how to go ahead I'm to trust your memory."

He took it for granted that she would be on hand every afternoon from two to five.

SUBVENTION NEEDED

Vancouver—In a brief presented to the city council last week, Mayor Telford urged that Turner Valley Oil be made available to the Dominion. If the problem of distribution were solved, said the Mayor, Canada could fill three-quarters of its gasoline needs from the Valley. This would keep $40,000,000 a year within the country.

TOUGH JOB

"Pat, didn't you tell me that a brother of yours is a lawyer?" "Yes, sir," replied Pat. "And you a hod carrier! The good things of life are not very equally divided are they?" "No, sir," said Pat. "Poor fellow—my brother couldn't do this to save his life."—Bridgeport Bulletin.

Mrs. Newlywed was feeling sad and looking very gloomy.

"What's the trouble dear?" her friend inquired.

"Oh—my husband has been out all the evening and I haven't the faintest idea where he is."

Oh, you shouldn't worry about that. You'd probably be twice as miserable if you did know!"

"BLANKETS FOR FRANCE"

The Canadian Red Cross Society has received an urgent request for blankets to be used in France, either for the twenty-three thousand of their hospital beds for their own wounded, or for the five million refugees from devastated countries to the north who are converging on Paris in their flight.

The National Committee on Policy drew up the following instructions as to the kind of blankets for which the appeal is made and the method of dealing with shipments:

DIRECTIONS TO DONORS

1. This appeal is for woolen blankets, not flannelette, or quilts of any kind nor any second hand or used clothing.

2. The woolen blankets may be new or "as good as new;" that is, not stained, torn, moth-eaten or threadbare blankets are accepted for overseas shipment.

3. If contributing both "new" and "used" blankets, keep them separate.

4. Sew on each blanket a label, about 2" x 4", at one corner; and mark it "new" or "used". If "used", state also if fumigated, washed or cleaned.

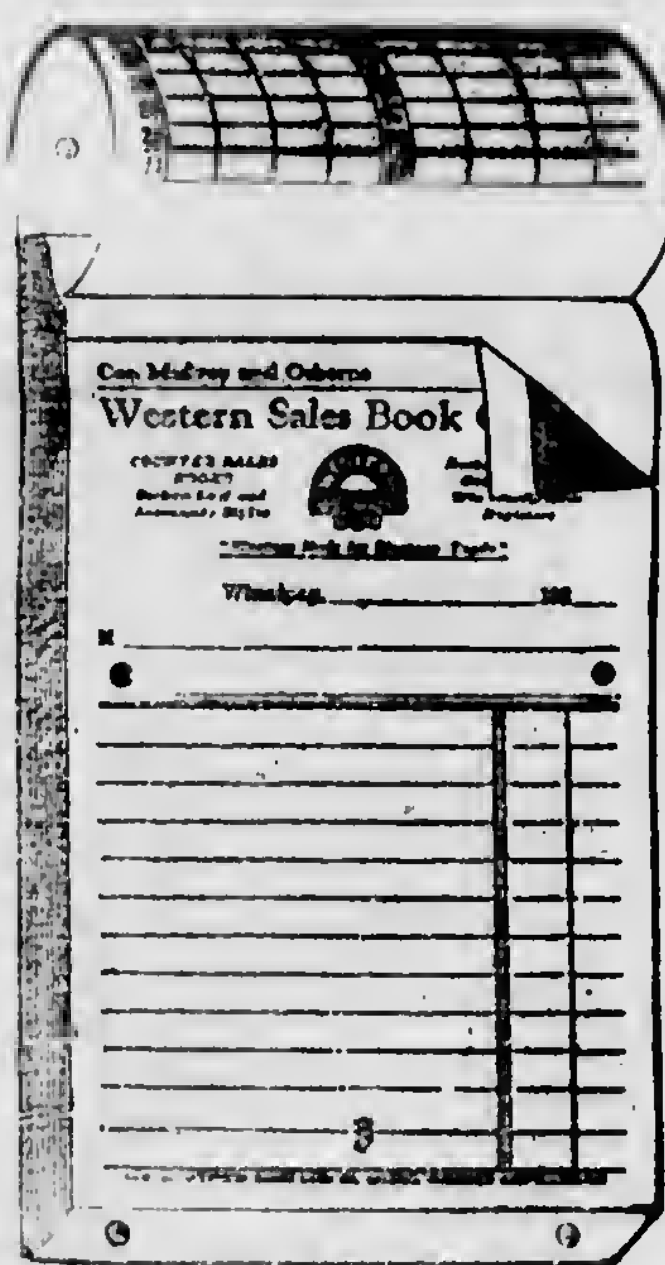

5. Blankets may be of any weight, size or colour; either single bed or double bed; either single or in pairs; but must be woolen, clean, and in good repair.

6. The appeal is urgent for immediate action.

"Hello, dear. How's the pain in the neck?"

"Oh! He's out golfing!"

WILLARD PAXMAN FRACTURES ELBOW

Willard, 15 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Paxman, fractured his elbow, skinned his face badly received a bad bruise on his back and was unconscious for about three hours following an accident on the road last Saturday.

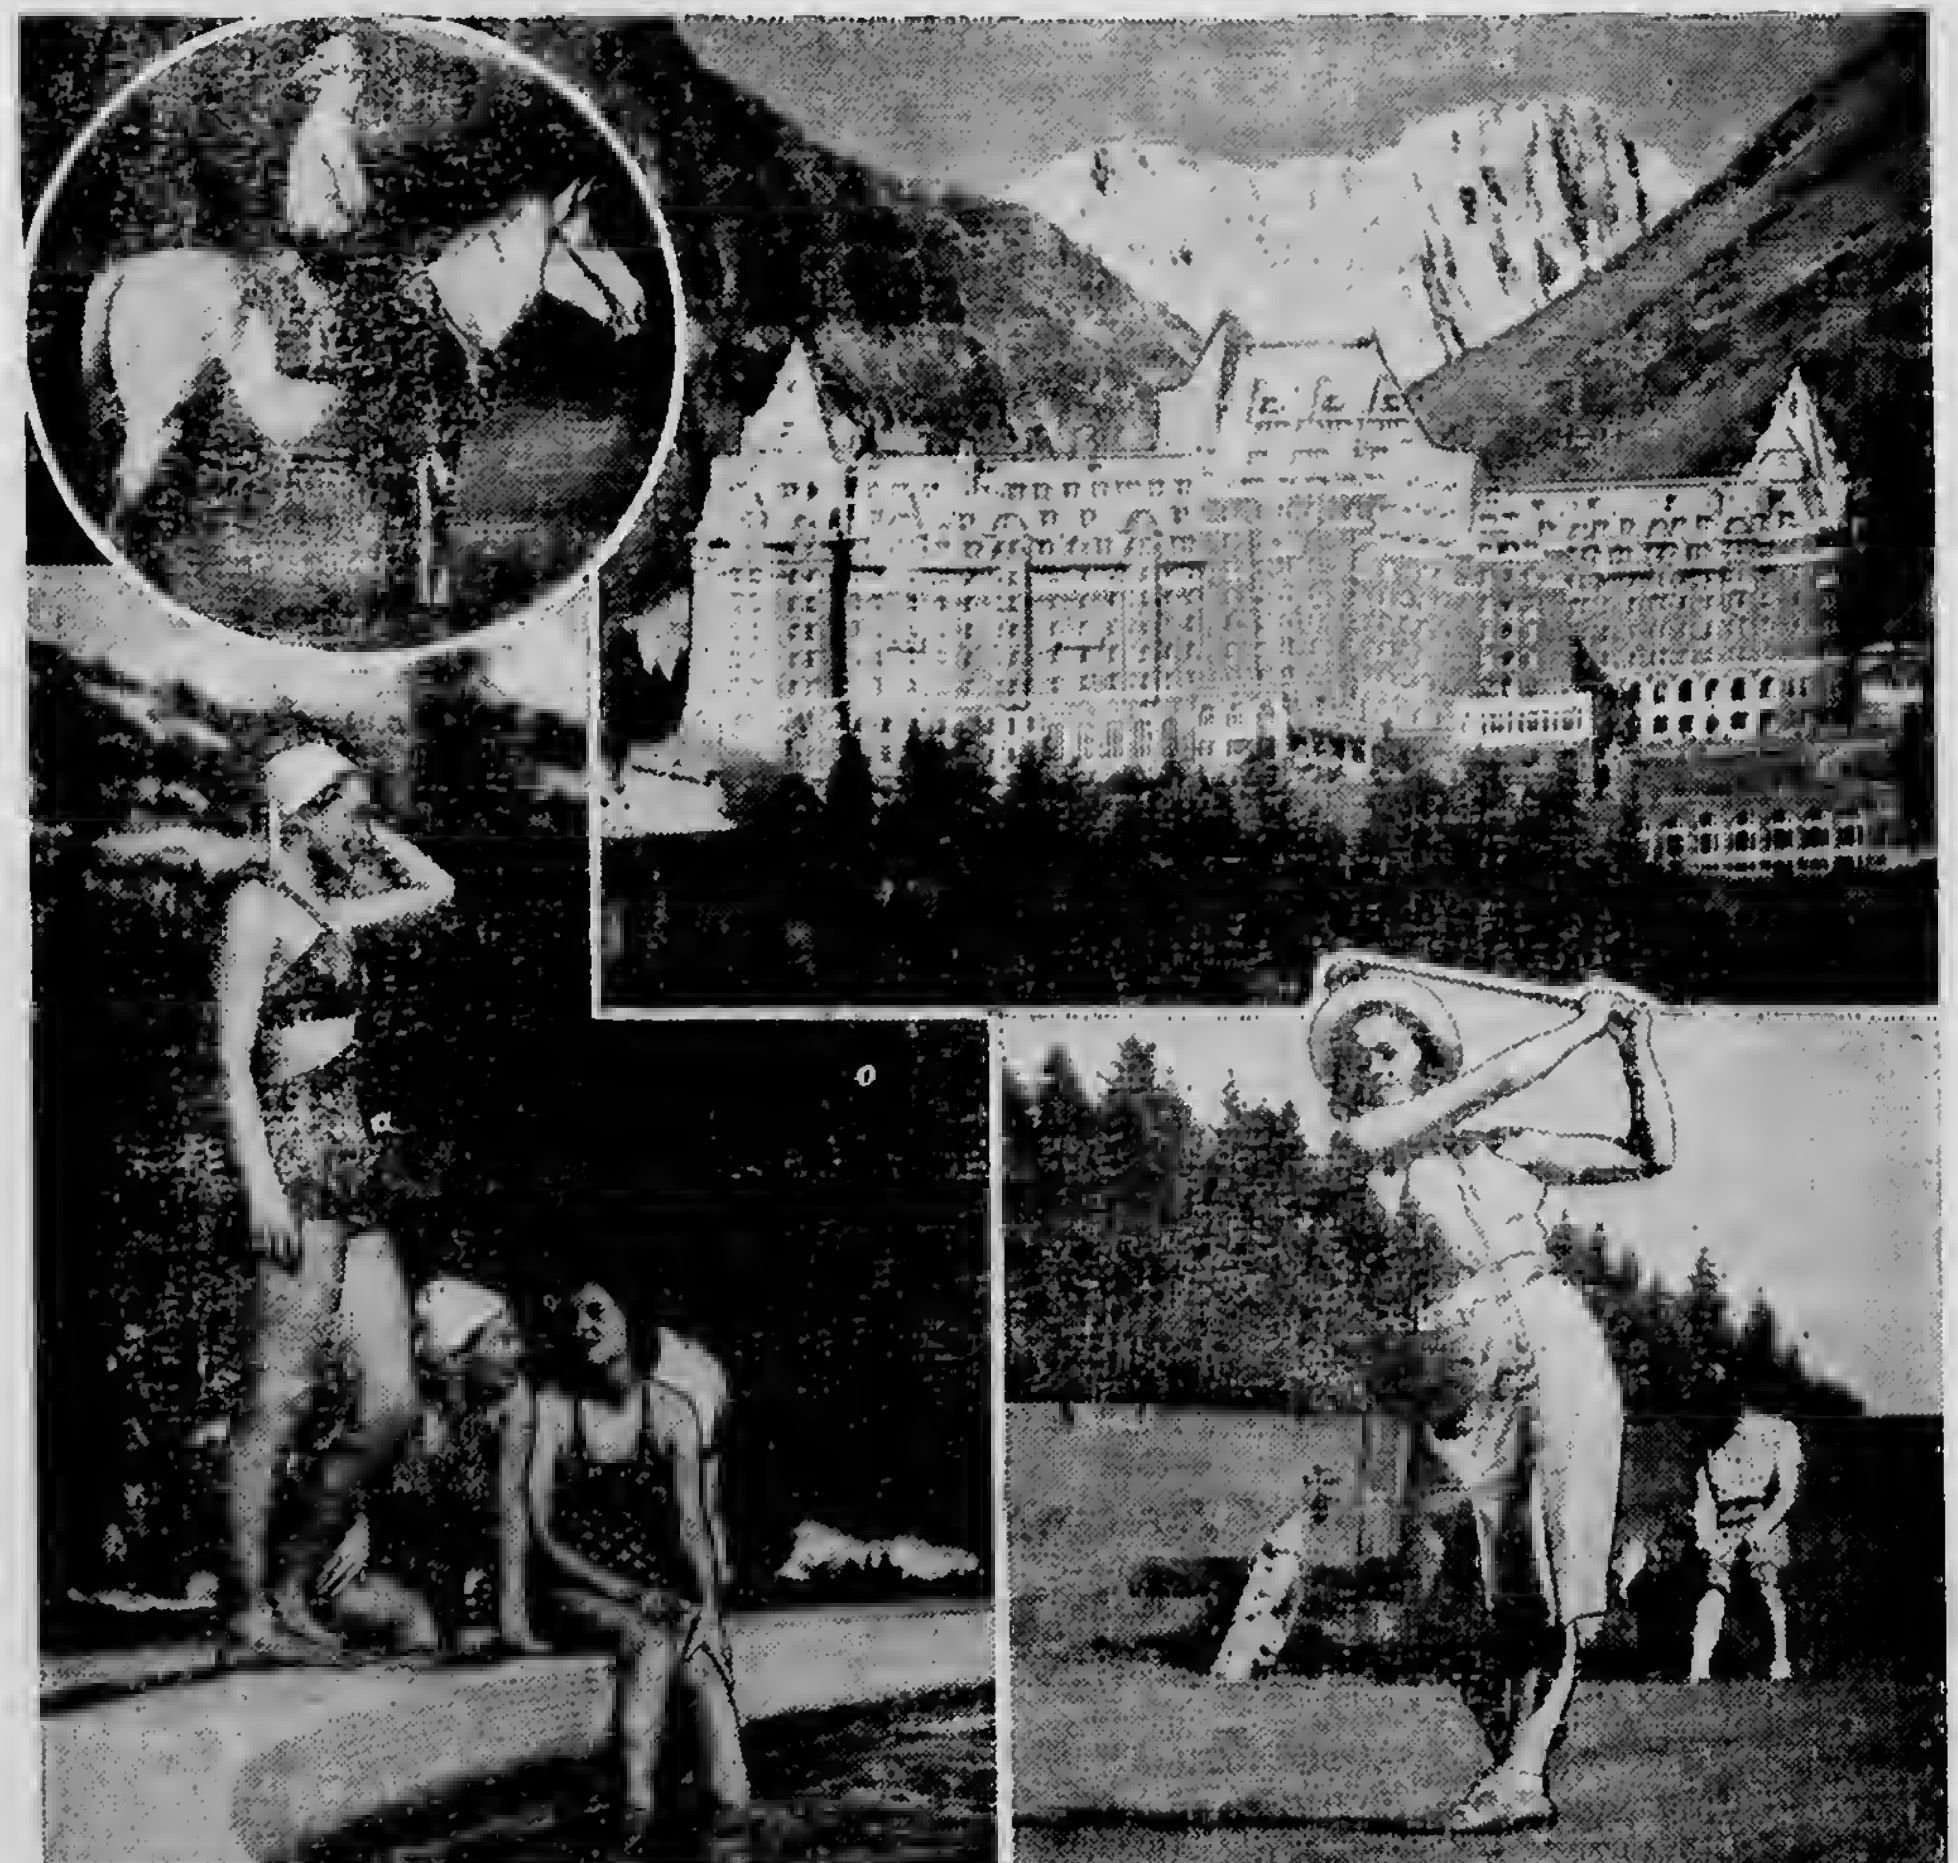

Willard was near the Taylor farm north of town when one of the Jensen boys passed in a car. The team bolted, and in some manner, still inexplicable, the line pulled out and Willard was left with no control of the team at all. He was on a flat rack and the team served off the road hit a telephone pole and threw the boy off, with results as mentioned. He is doing as well as can be expected but is having difficulty in school with only one arm to work with. We wish him a speedy recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. Cyril Layne spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. E. N. Peterson of Stirling. Mrs. Peterson is a sister of Cyril.

Don. Merrill went to Calgary on business Monday. His DeSoto caught fire last week, apparently from the exhaust and burned up, completely destroying it. When he left for Calgary he had not purchased another car.

Happy Mountain Holidays at Banff

CANADA'S "Great Barrier"—the Rocky Mountains—will be anything but a barrier for the record number of alpine-minded pleasure seekers anticipated this summer by the Canadian Pacific Railway and its celebrated mountain resorts—Banff Springs Hotel and Chateau Lake Louise. Also in readiness for a large-scale tourist invasion are the company's chalets and lodges at Emerald Lake, Yoho Valley, Moraine Lake, Lake Wapta and Lake O'Hara. Holiday-makers from all parts of Canada and the United States will soon be converging on these popular alpine playgrounds, where trail riding, hiking, fishing, boating, swimming, motorizing and golfing can be enjoyed amid unrivalled scenic splendor.

Though located in the very heart of the mountains, the Banff Springs Hotel and Chateau Lake Louise provide all the luxurious comforts of metropolitan hotels. The chalets and lodges provide similar comforts in less formal settings. Special events this summer will begin with the annual Stampede at nearby Calgary, July 8-13. The colorful Indian Days celebrations will take place from July 18-21, when hundreds of Stoney braves will descend on Banff for their annual pow-wow. Three prominent alpine societies have planned their annual outings as follows: Trail Riders of the Canadian Rockies, July 25-30; Sky Line Trail Hikers of the Canadian Rockies, Aug. 2-5; and the Alpine Club of Canada, July 14-20. The Edward, Prince of Wales, Trophy, and other coveted trophies will be contested for during Banff Golf Week, Aug. 18-24, on the mile-high course at Banff Springs. The Banff School of Fine Arts will be in session from Aug. 1-31. Other attractions include the opening of the Big Bend section of the trans-Canada highway between Golden and Revelstoke, and the scenic highway between Banff and the Columbia Icefields. Banff Springs Hotel, the Chateau Lake Louise and Emerald Lake Chalet will be open June 8-Sept. 8. The lodges are open as follows: Lake O'Hara, Lake Wapta, Yoho Valley, June 24-Sept. 6; Moraine Lake, June 8-Sept. 8.

HERE'S A LOW COST PLAN TO... help your studies!

A New Valuable TOOL IN EDUCATION

Recent tests, conducted by prominent educators, have shown parents, educators, and students that the portable typewriter is a most valuable educational tool. In a dramatic two years series of tests they have proven that most children improve grades as much as 14% when using a portable typewriter.

An unexpected outcome was that, in addition to betterment in Composition, Geography, History, Science and even Arithmetic, self expression became easier even for shy students!

You, too, can have this marvelous educational aid—for Remington Rand makes it easy to get! Only a small deposit, and terms as low as 10c a day, will bring you the Remette Portable, other models a trifle higher. Read what prominent educators say about student use of typewriters.
